Portland, Me., Feb. 15.—
Women today rushed to the aid of Benjamin H. Turner, slayer of James D. Hallen, as the convicted man reached the fifth day of his hunger strike and lay panting on a cot, too weak to continue his sullen pacing and free within the prison cell.

There is no likelihood that the Commonwealth will attempt to force the issue of forcible feeding, to prevent the closing of justice, until the hunger strike reaches its fourth day.

PREPARING APPEAL.
In his first statement to the public, the 36-year-old Turner railed against "New England justice," threatening to refrain from further comment until he had while his counsel prepared an appeal to a higher court to save their client from his sentence of life imprisonment.

A woman nurse, in a letter to the district's warden, wrote:

"Can anything be done to prevent reading Benjamin Turner by force? It would be cruel and inhuman. Read- ing a nurse, I know such treatment would cause all kinds of intestinal trouble and he would suffer untold pain. Please turn to Page 2, Column 2."

Cumberland County Jail, Portland, Me., Feb. 15.—"I have resolved not to taste food again until I get justice. What if I die? What do I care for death? It is preferable, far preferable. "I don't dread the punishment. It's the disgrace and utter humiliation I loathe. I found justice in Mexico and nobody get it in Maine."—Herbert H. Turner, "lifer," in his first interview since beginning his hunger strike, now in its fifth day.

A small, discouraged little man, with gray hair fringing a bald spot atop his head, stood in Superior Court today and heard Judge Fosdick say the words that mean he will serve from seven to nine years in State Prison.

He was Charles Ponzi, but Ponzi as far fallen from the heights as his bubble of 1920 was deflated and burst.

It was a Ponzi who beamed not upon the faces of his audience, a Ponzi whose once confident voice trembled as he declared soberly that never again will he see his aged mother, now in Italy and unable to get back.

And less a Puntz whose shabby and careless grooming were in sharp contrast to the immaculate, dapper appearance of days gone by when dollars rippled in a golden flow—and the goose hung high.

But Puntz, who had been suffering most of the ordeal he gave his explanations as to why he remained a fugitive from justice for many months in Florida and Texas, was not about to let his lawyer (now as Judge Fossick ordered him committed to prison and the trip to Charleston was begun).

"It is," Puntz said, "in his short talk to the court. 'All in a lifetime. I'm going to take my medicine.'"

His trial proceedings took only a few minutes.

Fourteen youths were questioned today by the police of Westminster in connection with the finding of 21-year-old Marion Miller unconscious in a street booth, with a diamond ring applied near her neck.

On Helen, Mrs. Hatch, of Hatch, where the two youths were known through their marriage as the girl was being taken to Westminster hospital, where she was being treated, according to the officers.

The attractive daughter of Joseph Miller, wealthy dairy owner, is being kept here today at the hospital.

She would have been dead within a short time had not the officers found her lying on the ground seated in an automobile, with the three-locked case of pistols over her head.

At the hospital Dr. George W. R. Egan quickly discovered that the girl was suffering from a deadly poison than ether, and an empuvial which had contained a deadly poison.

Answering the strike of 400 taxi drivers by direct action, the Town Taxi Company today offered the public the chance to ride in the cabs with uniformed patrolmen sitting beside the chauffeurs.

The strikers resented the presence of policemen. Leinster said that the police were untranscendental as the strikers and the policemen of using force to win their demands.

To prove that they are ready for a long battle, the company has been advertised for drivers and further announced that they are considering bringing strikers back from New York.

At least one other company, according to the union leaders, is not affected by the strike, the drivers of that company said today, but the decision of the company binds on a wage adjustment.

a few minutes. Every seat in the room was taken when Clerk of Court John P. Manning called out: Charles Ponzi.

Court Officer Joseph Kilday handed to the defendant pen and returned in a few moments with Ponzi, who was placed in the case.

Key rose and moved that Ponzi's stay of sentence be revoked. Responding, Judge Fiedler asked Ponzi if he wanted to be heard.

"I don't think so," said Ponzi. "There's not much I can say now."

"I will hear anything you want to say," suggested the Court.

Ponzi then began: "I am aware that I did not behave as I was expected to. I apologize to my home and to your honor for what I did. I am sorry that I did not keep my pledge and return for sentence."

NO PLEDGE TO JUDGE. Judge Fiedler: "You made no pledge to me, Ponzi. I don't doubt anything against you."

"I had made all arrangements to return, but at the time all I had to my name was $3, and I had to have money to pay my bondsmen down in Texas," said Ponzi, continuing. "I even tried to get a newspaper in Florida to pay my way back."

"Every time that I went to the railroad station my Florida bondsmen would be waiting for me, and they would not permit me to come to Boston. The railroad station was being watched all the time."

"I lost my head and went West to Tampa until the idea of going to Italy. I felt that in coming back here I was called upon to pay a penalty I had already paid."

HAD PAID FOR MISTAKES. "I don't claim that I was innocent in 1920. I believe that I was responsible for many mistakes, but I paid for them, and under ordinary circumstances I would not be called upon to pay twice for the same offense."

"I have been living on charity of relatives and friends and keeping my wife and mother that way. When I was in Boston and called for sentence I did not know what would become of them. My wife was not in the case, and my mother has no means of support. That is the reason I came to the court to ask for leniency."

Baby Found in Church Christened in Jail for 'Daddy Cop'

New York, Feb. 13 (A.P.)—Abandoned in a church and christened in a police station, a still-born, two-week-old black-haired girl today has a new father, who may or may not be a permanent one.

He is Patrolman Frank Miles, who was summoned to the Holy Name Church, Ninety-third street and Amsterdam avenue, by Father John Farrelly to take charge of a foundling left in the rear pew by a well-dressed young woman.

So effectively did the policeman "father" the child, that when Police Commissioner Margaret Walsh was sent for she found nothing further to be desired.

The baby had been fed, and even christened. With holy water Father Farrelly arrived at the police station and before half a dozen detectives and patrolmen the baby was named Francis Miles.

After I called the Attorney-General's office and they refused to accept my offer to return voluntarily, I said, 'All right, I'll fight. And I fought.'

SORRY FOR HIS MOTHER. Mrs. Ponzi's eyes welled, and she hesitated, started to speak again, and then succeeded, in a voice that trembled slightly.

"My mother—I will never see her again, probably. Well, live all in a lifetime; all in a lifetime. I'll take my medicine."

Then he was done, and Judge Fiedler revealed the story of experience. After this formally had been given through all other charges against Ponzi were filed, leaving him a clear road when he gets out of prison.

The company fleet refused to sign this agreement. They offered the drivers the proposition of a guaranteed wage of $2.50 a day for a nine-hour day with commutation of 25 percent on all money over $9 a day collected by the day men and $10 by the night men.

President John T. Rockett of the Town Taxi Company today predicted "a stampede of drivers to get back to work." He expressed confidence that his cab service would be back to normal in two days.

On the other side of the question, Edward Maloney, representing the strikers, said his men were determined to hold out until their demands were met. He issued orders to strikers and the peaceful pickets to refrain under all circumstances from violence or molestation of the Town taxis. Another meeting of strikers was scheduled at No. 39 Washington street today.

The cabinet discussed drafting a memorandum replying to President Coolidge's proposal, but it was understood that nothing in the way of a permanent decision would be made until after the conference. The cabinet also discussed the possibility of a further discussion of the world peace conference, but it was understood that nothing would be decided until after the conference.

MERTON TELLS

DAUGHERTY

By DAVID P. SENTNER,
International News Service Correspondent.

New York, Feb. 13—Richard Merton, former naval magnate, was recalled to the stand at the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial today for questioning by Judge John Knox, presiding.

Merton testified regarding his relation with John Peter Dulles, the attorney he engaged when he first sought the return of the $7,000,000 was seized assets around which the case hinges, and with the late John W. King, Congressional politician, who finally engineered the return.

The two defendants, former Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty and former Army Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller, are charged with having shared in a $15,000 bribe for allowing the return of the huge claim.

Merton told Judge Knox that he could not remember in detail his conversation with King at New South, Daugherty's right-hand man, regarding the claim. King told him that a lawyer was not needed to handle the case, and later King took the matter over from Dulles.

Dulles had already learned from the asset recovery custodian's office that the claim probably could not be secured and John King wanted to make it King knew of this at the time he took the case, but Merton said he did not recall.

In the vicinity of Washington, Courtroom 11, was expected to take the stand today.

The Real President Harding—
With All His Virtues and Faults

Out of the welter of gossip and exaggeration comes a clear, simple, unbiased account by Mrs. Elizabeth Jaffray, for seventeen years housekeeper of the White House, telling the exact sort of man President Harding was—of his kindly, gentle nature, his thoughtfulness, his weakness for his friends, his old-fashioned habits (as indicated by his demand for toothpicks at the White House table, and his fondness for sauerkraut and wiener-wurst) and, in the eyes of many, the misplaced hospitality that led him to consider his private life so absolutely his own that he felt free to serve cocktails and highballs in the White House to his intimate friends.

When future historians write the unprejudiced history of the first quarter of the twentieth century these Jaffray articles, published by Cosmopolitan, will be of inestimable value in furnishing the true picture of how the four presidents from Taft to Coolidge lived, ate, slept, worked, and played—just what manner of human beings both they and their wives were. Besides being the outstanding magazine features of the year, they are genuine historical documents.

Time and Thought for Improvement

The value of science and research in industry is strikingly illustrated in the review of Swift & Company's business for 1926.

Things don't "just happen." There is reason and thought behind each move.

Housewives are turning to lighter beef because of certain definite developments in American life;

Premium Ham and Bacon taste the same in New York as in San Francisco because science has made that possible;

Variations in texture and moisture, and in proportions of fat and lean have been overcome by uniform standards of manufacture.

Science and research play an important part in solving the problems that rise daily. Just how these problems are worked out, together with many more interesting facts about the business, is set forth in the Swift & Company 1927 Year Book.

NON-ESSENTIALS HANDICAP ON ROAD TO SUCCESS

There comes a time in life when the knowledge of the essential order of doing might mean a big saving of time and money. If you study the essential order of doing, in any undertaking, you will be able to make more or changes in best progressive order. It is natural but foolish to waste time on non-essentials. Non-essentials do not help you advance toward the goal you have set.

The sooner you learn to sift blinding forces from the turmoil of conflicting interests, and drop them out of your daily schedule, the sooner you will arrive at success.

Don't deny by the waste.

It may be all right for those who are not going your way, but if you are going to carry out your plans you cannot afford to waste your precious time loitering.

Think well before you waste your road.

Plan a worthwhile goal and go straight for it. If you daily by the time-olds you may fail to arrive.
